Investor Responsibility and Risk Awareness

Investing in or engaging with financial products involves substantial risks, including the possibility of significant or total capital loss. Financial markets are volatile and unpredictable, and there is no guarantee that any financial product, strategy, or service will deliver profit or achieve specific goals.

Key principles:

- Investors are strongly encouraged to seek independent professional advice, which may include:
 - A financial advisor (for product suitability and investment strategies);
 - A legal advisor (for regulatory or contractual considerations);
 - A tax advisor (for tax implications or reporting obligations).

Your investment decisions must be based on a clear understanding of the product's features, risks, and your financial objectives.
